BASKET BALL SCHEDULE OUT FOR NEXT YEAR

Season Will Open With a Game With Cicero

MANY STRONG SCHOOLS INCLUDED

Return Game With Boxley If a New Gym Is Provided There

Of the last three games on the regular schedule, Fishers won one, lost one, and gave one away.

In the game at Walnut Grove Fishers played a good hard game but could not connect with the basket. Shot after shot, the ball rolled around the rim but fell off on the wrong side. On the other hand Ross, the sharp shooter for Walnut could not miss. The first three shots he made registered six points and they were not made from under the basket. At the half time, Walnut was leading 20 to 6.

However, Fishers staged a comeback in the second half and gave Walnut a little scare at least. At one time they were leading by just a few points. The game closed with Walnut leading 39 to 32.

On February 18th Fishers played Castleton at the latter place. In the preliminary game the girls lost to Castleton 15 to 7. Inaccurate basket shooting was the cause of the defeat.

Owing to the size of the court the boys game was rather slow. As is usually the case the whistle was blown often for held ball or fouls. Howe and Flanders were both put off on personals and Harrison left with cold feet. The outcome looked doubtful for a while, but Emery came through with three field goals and the game closed with Fishers leading 22 to 16.

The season closed with Arcadia at Fishers, Feb. 27th. In the preliminary game Arcadia won in a rather slow game, 16 to 15. In the second game Arcadia started off with a bang. Before Fishers knew it the score was 14 to 1. Then things began to tighten at the half time, Arcadia was leading by two points. During the second half the score was close. At no time was either team leading by a big margin. With three-fourths of a minute to play, Fishers was leading, when a poor pass and a foul on Fishers gave the game to Arcadia.

Of the seventeen games on the regular schedule, Fishers won seven and lost ten. With the exception of three games none of the defeats were decisive. On the whole, we feel that Fishers has been in a healthy condition. She has lost enough games to keep her feet on the ground, and won enough to keep her from feeling down and out. Certainly it cannot be said of Fishers that basket ball was all that was being offered in school. On the other hand the team has been worthy of the support of the public and the management deeply appreciates the backing given the team.

Another thing for which Fishers should feel proud is the fact that without a single exception, schools that played here this year wanted to come back next year. We leave to you to decide why.

We thought you would be interested in knowing whom Fishers would have to play next season, so here is the schedule. Look it over:

CLASS PARTY

Miss Esther Messersmith entertained for her Sunday school class last Thursday evening from 7:30 to 10. Games were played until about nine when refreshments were served. Those present were: Paul Butz, Austin Flanders, Clarence Castetter, Harry Love, Forrest Garboden, Marion Askren, Roger Brizendine, Hollis Nance, Paul Kirkpatrick, Alwyn Randall and Irene Butz.

ROOM TWO ITEMS

Three Pupils Are Lost To Other Schools

There have been several changes in our room the past month. Mildred Messersmith moved to Knox, N. Dakota; Ortha Davis, lives near Noblesville; and Marvin Jackson is attending the Highland school.

Errol Shafer has returned after having attended the Wheeler school the past five months. Harlan Rike entered the third grade, coming from the Zionsville schools.

We are glad to welcome these newcomers but are very sorry to lose the older pupils.

Those who have been neither tardy nor absent during the entire year are: Josephine Beaver, Ruth Seymour, Gladys Sutton and Melvin Wiles.

The pupils of rooms 1 and 2 were delighted when told that the Rev. Borders would give a talk on Wednesday morning, March 18th. The force of "Habits" both good and bad, was well presented. Leona Breese will move to Greenfield next week.

The pupils of room 2 presented a flag drill and song "Stars and Stripes, We Love You," for their part of the fourth number of the Lyceum course.

INAUGURATION BY RADIO

Through the generosity of Mr. Griffey, Fishers High School was able to listen in on the inaugural program. Soon after school had taken up Robt. Abney reported that Mr. Griffey had offered the school the use of his five-tube radio set.

The boys were soon busy putting up an aerial. They experienced some difficulty in doing this satisfactorily because of the lack of time in getting the needed material. However they finally got everything arranged in working order just in time to hear the preliminary announcements.

The high school and seventh and eighth grades crowded into the office to hear such a program for the first time. Perhaps the most enjoyable part of the program was the music by the marine band. Several remained in the office during the noon hour.

Mr. Griffey is certainly a booster of Fishers High School and the faculty appreciates it very much.

CONSTITUTION IS STUDIED BY THE FISHERS SCHOOL

Every Student Has Written An Essay On This Subject

PRIZE IS OFFERED BY MR. QUEAR

Prizes Amounting To $100 Also Offered By the Bar Association

Every student in the Fishers High School has written an essay on the constitution. Many of them are excellent, some of which will be found in this paper.

Mr. Quear has offered a prize for the best essay. Great interest has been shown in the work and Fishers expects to have a contestant in the County Oratorical for the first time in many years.

The orations are to be on the constitution of the United States. The Hamilton County Bar Association is offering one hundred dollars in prizes as follows: Fifty dollars first prize; twenty-five dollars, second prize; fifteen dollars, third prize; ten dollars, fourth prize. Fishers expects to bring home part of the bacon.

The winner of the county contest will represent Hamilton County in the district contest.

FOURTH NUMBER OF LYCEUM COURSE PRESENTED BY SCHOOL

The last number of the Lyceum course was presented by the school a few weeks ago.

The orchestra, under the instructions of Mr. Caylor, gave several numbers which were enjoyed very much.

The grades under the instructions of their teachers gave some very impressive drills and recitations. The Seventh and Eighth grades presented the "Persecuted Dutchman," which caused many to lose themselves in excitement and laughter.

The Lyceum course seemed to be a success in every way, except financially and in this way it was discouraging. The Lyceum course was contracted for another year and we sincerely hope that it is patronized by every one.

"DADDY LONG LEGS" IS CLASS PLAY CHOSEN

Will Be Presented By Senior Class of the Fishers School

DATES SELECTED MARCH 27 AND 28

Cast Is Headed By Dorsey Dodd—Others Who Take Part

The Senior Class of Fishers High School will present the play, "Daddy Long Legs," the 27th and 28th of March, Friday and Saturday evenings, at Manship's hall, Fishers, Indiana.

This is the story of a trustee of the John Grier home, Mr. Pendleton, who sends Judy, a promising orphan, to college—with the understanding that no one is to know he does it, or that she is an orphan.

During this time Judy feels that her social position can never be as that of her friends, due to her birth. She has never seen her guardian, Daddy Long Legs, as she calls him, and is made to believe he is just a kind, fatherly, old man. She never dreams Mr. Pendleton, the uncle of her college room-mate, is Daddy Long Legs. They become very good friends, and finally that friendship develops into a love affair—which feeling is mutual. Juddy, however, because she thinks he does not know she is from an orphan asylum, refuses to marry him. Daddy Long Legs thinks she refuses because she is in love with Jimmie, the brother of one of her college friends.

All ends well—Juddy finds out that her lover is Daddy Long Legs. Don't fail to see the ending.

Characters in the Play
Jervis Pendleton, her daughter—Blossom Beaver.

Sallie, a friend of Julia Pendleton—Ethel Mantz.

Jimmie, her brother, who is interested in visiting his sister, after Judy rooms with her—Edgar Frazier.

Miss Pritchard, a kind woman who takes an interest in Judy—Maud McGinety.

Mrs. Simple, a nurse of Mr. Pendleton—Mary E. Hamble.

Mrs. Lippett, matron of the John Grier Home—Wilma Brizendine.

Mr. Wykof, Trustee—Kenneth Kirkpatrick.

Griggs, secretary, Russell Howe.

Orphans:
Gladiola—Dorothy Messersmith.
Loretta—Mable Hamble.

Sadie Kate—Anna Howe.
Mamie—Mary Whitacre.

Freddie Perkins—Theodore Johnson.

ROOM ONE NOTES

Several Changes Made the Past Month

We were very sorry to have three of our pupils move to other schools. Those who have moved are: Faye Cain, William Breese and Amy Jackson.

We also have two new pupils, Lawrence Woolman, who came from New Bethel, and Mabel Rike, who moved here from Zionsville.

The talk given Wednesday morning by Rev. Borders was enjoyed very much by everyone. Rev. Borders gave a talk on habits, illustrating his talk with drawings which the first and second grades liked very much.

The study of the Dutch people has been very interesting this month and many things have been learned about the life of the Dutch.

We were very glad to have as visitors this last week, Mrs. Fairly Sutton and son Sterling.

CONSTITUTION OF UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

The Constitution of the United States of America is the most remarkable document ever written by man. It was the first of its kind, and although there was no Republican government from which a foundation could be gotten, the statesmen who wrote it succeeded in drawing up the Constitution which was adequate at that time and though many years have passed, bringing great social and commercial changes, it is still adequate.

It is the outgrowth of the struggle for self-government which began in the year 1774 with the First Continental Congress. This Congress was composed of representatives from the thirteen Colonies. They met to consider their common grievances. The result was a declaration of rights and grievances to be presented to King George. In the periodical sessions of the Continental Congress was vested all the Federal power of that time.

The Second Continental Congress which met in 1775 took upon itself the power to draw up a plan for a closer confederation the need for which was more forcibly shown by the oncoming war with Great Britain. This document was called "The Articles of Confederation." It provided that each colony should be represented by not less than two or more than seven delegates. They were to have the right to make war, make peace treaties, manage foreign and Indian affairs, coin and borrow money. The expenses of Congress were to be borne by the taxes raised by the States.

These "Articles" were weak. They provided for no separate legislative body, no separate judiciary department to interpret the laws, no separate executive power—the laws could be made but there was no power to enforce them—then the State law was supreme. Still it was a big stride toward effective governing. A weak government is better than no government—it is at least a foundation.

In 1783 the Independence of the United States was recognized. Then began the "Critical" period. Dissent among the States was great, and there was no money. The government had contracted a large debt which the States would not meet. When Congress tried to meet the debt by raising the import duties, New York objected so vigorously that they had to give up that plan. They did double all taxes, indirect and direct.

The States were quarreling among themselves. They had become bitter rivals. Interstate tax was charged. The hostilities became so great that the confederacy was practically gone. Virginia was first to recognize the danger and to act.

The House of Burgess invited all of the States to be represented in a Council to consider their difficulties. So few were represented, however, at this meeting, that they could take no action. A resolution was passed to meet at Annapolis, May 14, 1787. All the States except Rhode Island, appointed delegates.

May 25, 1787, the "Constitutional Convention" began. All the great statesmen of that period were represented. George Washington was elected President of the convention. The convention was divided into factions. The smaller states in one group, the larger States in another group. Then there was a group which desired strong central government and one which desired the States to be supreme.

Finally after each of the factions had made concessions and compromises, which they did not wholly approve but which they felt necessary if an agreement was to be reached, a final draft of the constitution was made and submitted September the seventeenth. After nine States had ratified it, a resolution was passed to adopt it. This new government which was established by the adoption of the Constitution was to be no longer advisory—but imperative supreme.

The Preamble to the Constitution sets forth its purpose: to establish justice, to form a more perfect union, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessing of liberty forever.

In Article 1, the organization for the Legislative body is taken care of, also its duties and powers are enumerated.

Congress was divided into two bodies, one, to satisfy the large States—House of Representatives, the other to satisfy the smaller States—the Senate.

The House of Representatives is composed of members elected for two years. The number of representatives from each State depending upon the population. This House was to have the sole power of impeachment of government officials.

The Senate is composed of members, two from each, elected for a six years term. They have the sole power to try impeachments, but can only remove the men judged guilty from office, and disqualify them for holding any office. The elections for and meetings of Congress are determined by each state.

Certain powers are enumerated in the constitution which may be exercised by Congress, such as to lay and collect taxes, provide for the defense and general welfare, borrow money, regulate commerce in foreign states and among the United States, make naturalization laws, coin money, provide the punishment of criminals who commit Federal offenses, establish post offices, declare war, and make all laws necessary and proper for carrying out the execution of all laws.

The people feared that the Federal Government might become supreme, so to counteract this power and safeguard their freedom, certain prohibitions were placed on Congress. They are: no migration or importation of persons shall be prohibited before 1808. A tax, however, of ten dollars could be placed on them. This was a safe guard against the non-importation of slaves; the writ of Habeas Corpus shall not be suspended except in cases of rebellion and invasion; every person must be allowed a trial; no tax shall be laid on goods exported from a state; no preference given one state by regulation of commerce revenue; expenditures and receipts of all money spent from the Treasury must be kept; no person may be granted a title of nobility by the United States or accept one from a King or Prince without consent of Congress. States also have certain prohibitions. They cannot enter into any alliance, or coin money or lay export or import duties.

The Article 2 deals with Executive department. The Executive power is vested in a President and Vice President elected for a term of four years. He is to be elected by elections from each state which electors vote for at least two men and send their vote to the Senate, the man who receives the majority vote is President. If no majority is reached the House of Representatives votes for the President. If the President should die or be removed from office, the Vice President is made President. The President must be a natural born citizen.

The President is Commander-in-Chief of the Army, he also has the power to grant pardons, and to make treaties with consent of Congress, with the advice of the Senate appoint ambassadors, ministers and consuls, judges, and to fill up vacancies in Senate. The right of veto is one of the President's most important powers. After the Congress has passed a bill, he may veto it, then the bill returns to Congress to be reconsidered. However, Congress may pass it by a two-thirds majority, over his veto.

The Judiciary department is provided for in Article 3. The courts are to be the Supreme Court and all inferior courts which Congress deems necessary. The Judicial power extends to all cases in equity and law and all treaties, or persons, or organizations under the control of the United States. Trials affecting Ambassadors and public ministers, and cases in which a state is a party, the Supreme Court has original jurisdiction, other cases the Appellate Courts have.

Article 4 deals with State rights and relation. Each state is entitled to the same privileges as all states. No State is to harbor fugitives from another State. The United States guarantees a Republican form of government to all states in the Union, also protection is offered to all.

Article 6 makes the National Law supreme.

The Constitution has had only nineteen amendments. Three of them deserve special mention. The Thirteenth Amendment abolished slavery from the United States forever. The eighteenth prohibits the manufacturing and transportation of all intoxicating liquors. The nineteenth amendment extends suffrage to women.

This whole constitution is a work of men, who by great thought and foresight and without desire for personal honors, have devoted their lives to better our country. It is up to us now. The future rests with us, the people. A democracy cannot rise above its people—its source.

I WONDER

If the stories that are told of F. H. S girls are true. If F. H. S. will win the oratorical contest. Why some one doesn't change the subject and write an essay on love.

Why our play is called "Daddy Long Legs."

Why Dee is so happy.

If Blossom wants a ring too.

If the seventh grade likes to sit in the presence of the Honorable high school.

Why they don't call Ethel an old maid.

Where Mr. Long got all those stories?

Who all the unlucky men are?

Where Mrs. Schooly gained all her knowledge on love?

Why the subject of love doesn't interest Dorsey?

If the Seniors are beginning to feel blue?

If this is the best Senior class Fishers ever put out?

Who will win the tourney?

How it feels to be rejected?

Why Lois is always looking around?

Why so many in the Geometry class have the spring fever?

Why Forest and Byron come in late at intermissions?

If the Seniors will make their will this year?

Why Anna and Della were late to school the other day at noon?

How Bob Abney likes living in Indianapolis?

Who Jack Ohler is going with now?

If the 7th and 8th grade B. B. players would like to have their banana splits?

Where Arthur W. got all his knowledge for Geometry?

If Bob Abney likes to make more than one date for the same night?

Where Della got the pin she is wearing?

Why Howard F. is so friendly lately with all the girls?

Why the boys call Mabel A. Poke?

Why all the Seniors and Mrs. Schooly are always together talking?

Why the girls basket ball team didn't get their pictures put in the Communicator. Reward for all information received.

If the Senior play will be any good?

Why Lois and Feneda have so much business down town?

If there will be any good orations on the "Constitution?"

Why Mary F. got to coughing in English class the other day?

Where Charlie got her tie pin?

Where Russ and Joe K. got their red ties?

Why Dorothy Emery is always happy on Tuesday mornings?

Where Charlie's H. S. ring is?

THE CONSTITUTION

The Constitution of the United States is a document that should be cherished by every American citizen. It is the first document ever laid down as the fundamentals of a nation, giving every native born citizen equal opportunities to some day become the leader of his country. It has been for one hundred and thirty eight years the foundation on which a nation has been building. Until today that nation stands the greatest of all the nations in the world. A nation conceived in liberty and justice for all.

At the time of the construction of the constitution, our country was only a small group of colonies, loosely united in an imperfect union under the "Articles of Confederation," there was no strong central government, no unity, the states were jealous of one another and domestic relations were in a very bad condition. As Washington said "one nation today and thirteen tomorrow." It was a new nation on the brink of destruction, but it never fell. For in the constitutional convention there came together some of the world's greatest statesmen, and founded a constitution so strong that it has never been broken by human strength. And today that same small group of colonies has grown to be the foremost nation of the world. And under that great document, union, domestic tranquillity and freedom reign supreme.

A little more than three score years and ten after the construction of this constitution our country was thrown into a great civil war. As Lincoln said, "Testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated can long endure." But our constitution had formed too perfect a union to be broken by this war. Instead is made our country stronger.

That unity has never been surpassed, because of the enormous strength of our federal government which is built upon this constitution. There was nothing easy in the construction of this constitution. It had to be constructed to long endure through the ages. And so to make it endure generation after generation, they made it so it could be amended as the passing of time deemed it necessary. But not so easy did they make this as to ruin its strength.

The rights of the states had to be considered too, so that there would be perfect union. And so the general principles governing the divisions of powers between the National government on the one hand and the state on the other were thus laid down in the tenth amendment, "The powers not delegated to the United States, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states." In other words the constitution turned over to the Federal government those powers that could not be carried on by a single state, and that were for the states as a whole. And in turn gave the states all the rights not prohibited by the constitution. It gave the federal government power to maintain an army and a navy, to declare war and make peace, to make treaties and other foreign relations, and promised to all states equal protection. All these it did for a common defence. It gave it power to regulate foreign and interstate commerce, to maintain post roads, to issue coin and paper money, to grant copyrights and patents, and with these it has secured for us domestic tranquillity. It gave power to establish federal courts which has insured us justice.

The constitution has given to the people a law making body of the people. The legislature of the United States known as the congress consisting of two houses, the House of Representatives, and the Senate. The House of Representatives represents the National principle, because it represents the people according to their population. The Senate represents the Federal principle for in it each state is equally represented. And article five of the constitution says "No State, without its consent, shall be deprived of equal suffrage in the Senate." The good again in our constitution forming a congress of two bodies is that, the minority is protected against the majority, and one acts as a check upon the other. And the Senate having a longer term than the other house can give the wishes of the people, given them by the House of Representatives, due consideration and balance them with the Federal law. A country so extensive as ours has become, and representing such a variety of social, economic, and political conditions, would not have held together without equal representation of the states in the senate as is given by great constitution. The constitution of our country also has given us another great advantage and privilege. It has given us the power to choose our own executive or leader of our country from among us. And in doing so protected the goodness of this office from mass radicalism. Through this privilege some of the world's greatest statesmen have led their country and helped to make it what it is. Such as, George Washington, James Madison, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, William McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, and today, Calvin Coolidge, a man in whom Americans can put their trust.

Our constitution has given us a democracy of freedom. It has given us in the first ten amendments of the constitution that which makes us love America. The constitution provides that neither the United States nor any state may deprive a person of the right to be free or of life liberty, or property without justice under law. It gives us religious liberty, a liberty that was not given in the old world. And because it was not given has caused more bloodshed than any other one thing in all the history of the world. It gives us freedom of speech and press. It gives us the right to assemble in our places without being molested. We also have the "Habeas Corpus," and are all equal before the law.

Now we may look for a moment to the advantage of a democracy as this great constitution has given us. It is true that the people are the best keepers of their own liberty and happiness. We find in an aristocratic or monarch government that there has always been a temptation to those responsible for the government to put their own interest before those of the people. And also they who are of the people are not apt to know where the greatest interests of the people lay. This is not true in a democracy. For the people know where their greatest interests lay and it is they who must suffer if they govern themselves wrong.

Roosevelt said the only safe progressive is the man who can look far into the past, and such is the democracy of this country, built upon the constitution with much in it as the "Magna Charta." The past is like the foundation of a great monument. Forms of governments have risen and fallen. No government can rise higher than its source, and the source of democracy is the people. The future is dependent upon the people, and the issue will be determined by the value of their citizenship.

However, the liberty of our democracy is a liberty under law. Like any other form of government democracy is dependent upon the law and law enforcement for its life. We pride ourselves in the part we have in making our laws. Are we ready to assume our responsibility for the enforcement of the law. A respect for law must be built up in the hearts of the American people until it becomes a national virtue. If this is accomplished the success of the experiment which the founders of our country began and the builders have thus far "so nobly advanced" will be assured. Arthur J. Whitacre.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

On Sunday, March 1st, Miss Pearl Mantz entertained her friends at a birthday dinner.

The table was attractively decorated in pink and white. The birthday cake was decorated with twelve candles.

The afternoon was spent in playing many different games. Those present were: Marvin and Alma Fuller, Junita Beaver, Ione Johnson, Bernice Clark and Francis Russell, Opal Beaver and Lawrence Barnhill.

IMPROVING LOOKS OF SCHOOL GROUND

With two or three posts broken off, the pipe bent in two or three places and the whole thing badly in need of paint, the front fence did not contribute much to the beauty of the landscape.

However, this condition will not exist long. Mr. Quar, with the aid of the sophomore boys and Mr. Toye have made the needed repairs and are now busy with the first coat of paint. The whole job will be completed in a few days.

WADE, CARMEL, GIVEN HONORABLE MENTION

In Newspaper Selection of All State Quintet

The Indianapolis Star, in picking an all-star state basket ball team, gives honorable mention to Wade, of Carmel, but not a single Hamilton county boy is mentioned in the Star's first, second or third team. Most of the basket ball fans of this county have regarded Wade as being the best player in the county for two seasons. He began to hit his stride last season and was at his best during the season which closed last week. He will finish his school work at Carmel this spring and will not be seen in action in this county any more as a high school player.

Here is the Star's pick of a first team but all of the fans in Hamilton county will not agree with the selections:

- Forward—Beadles (Washington)
- Forward—Spradling (Frankfort)
- Forward—Boykin (Marion)
- Center—Walter (Kokomo)
- Center—Cummins (Frankfort)
- Guard—Good (Frankfort)
- Guard—Morgan (Muncie)
- Guard—Derek (Kokomo)

BASKET BALL ENDS WITH AN INTRAMURAL TOURNAMENT

Yes, we are going to have a tournament similar to the one we had last year. Perhaps you remember that the Wampus Cats defeated the Flying Jacks in the first game, that the Meteors downed the Wonder Five in the second game and that the Meteors were too hot for the Wampus Cats in the finals.

The captain of the "Star Netters" this year in Frazier, his team is composed of the following men:

Frazier, Quear, Abney, Dodd, Castetter and P. Kirkpatrick.

The captain of the "Net Burners" is Garboden. Here is the lineup: Garboden, Long, G. Kirkpatrick, Kinnaman, R. Johnson and Clark.

Captain Flanders is looking after the "Star Rovers." Behold the Stars: H. Flanders, Emery, K. Kirkpatrick, Miller, A. Flanders and Whitacre.

"The Six Horsemen" are being led by Captain Howe. Do you know these famous riders: Bill Rogers, (Howe), Dan McGrew, (Harrison), Buffalo Bill, (Whitell), Paul Revere (Ohler), Barney Google, (Ray) and Peanut, (T. Johnson)?

The girls have been invited to play the curtain raiser but have not reported their teams yet.

The opening game is between the "Star Netters" and the "Roving Stars."

Each team is expecting to win. Confidence makes the thing interesting. In the second battle the Horsemen tangle with the Net Burners. A glance at the lineup of each team shows that this ought to be a good game.

The surviving teams will play in the finals.

Monday, March 30th has been set for the big classic. Come out and boost for your favorite team.

Mr. Harold is donating the "gym" and all the proceeds go to the school.

Evolution of Trade Marks and Advertising

The trade mark was invented during a time of grand colonization. A business house in Cathoga Nova (Carthage), which manufactured a delicious fish sauce and sent it to all parts of the world in hermetically sealed pitchers, burnt nine stars into the containers. The nine stars were the emblem of the sacred fish, the dolphins. A big lamp factory in the Roman Rhineland adorned all its lamps with the utensils of eye specialists—whch people who used the lamps should ever come to know!

Advertising, of course, grew more and more luxurious. It was a favorite child of commerce in imperial Rome. Dozens of the best painters and sculptors worked for the wool kings, silk houses, and the big weapon factories which grew up like mushrooms wherever the Roman armies advanced.

People vied with one another in erecting altars to the protectors of trade and navigation; but on these altars they inscribed the names and trade of the donors, as a means of advertising. The Roman business men were as though seized by a fever of competition. Eurysaces, the pastry king of Rome, used his tomb as an advertisement; his tombstone had the form of an enormous cake!—Exchange.

Legend Traces Hyacinth to Sorrow of Apollo

The wild hyacinth was originally found in Greece and Asia Minor. The ancient Greeks had a story about its origin to the effect that one day the god Apollo was playing a game of quoits with a young mortal, Hyacinthus, of whom he was very fond, when Zephyrus, the god of the west wind, passed by. Zephyrus was jealous of Apollo and blew the latter's quoit aside, and caused it to strike Hyacinthus and inflict a mortal wound. In his memory Apollo caused these beautiful and fragrant clustered blossoms to spring from the fallen drops of the youth's blood.

The hyacinth was brought to western Europe in the Sixteenth century, and extensively cultivated by Dutch horticulturists. The original blue and purple blossoms were varied to numerous shades of pink, rose, yellow, scarlet and pure white—Kansas City Star.

STATE TITLE WENT TO FRANKFORT

Defeated Kokomo In Final Game Saturday Night

The state basket ball title went to Frankfort in the closing game at Indianapolis Saturday night. The Clinton county lads won from Kokomo in the final game by the score of 34 to 20.

It was a thrilling contest until the middle of the second half when the splendid defense of the losers cracked under the terrific strain after cutting down a lead of 17 to 10 obtained by the new champions to a margin of three points.

The turning point of the battle which was waged with such insentivity as to electrify a frenzied crowd estimated at fully 15,000, came when the count was 19-16. Fighting doggedly, courageously, but hopelessly before the furious pace of the winners it was plain to be seen that the Kokomo boys had reached the limit of their physical stamina and that it was only a matter as to how large the score would be.

As Kokomo weakened, the Frankfort lads appeared to gather more reserve strength. Up and down the floor the members of the team raced with increased energy and fifteen points were piled up in succession without a tally being registered by the runners-up in this great basket ball marathon. This moved the scoring up to 31-16, and along with that burst of speed was ushered in a strangle hold on the glittering objective—the 1925 high school championship.

Saturday afternoon Frankfort won from Washington, the team which defeated Carmel, by the score of 30 to 37 and also Saturday afternoon Kokomo defeated Vincennes by the score of 41 to 29. The two days tournament was attended by several hundred fans from Hamilton county.
